Overview

In light of the current and escalating future shortages in the physician workforce, many healthcare providers need to consider non-traditional sources of physicians. Given that physician recruitment is becoming increasingly competitive, it is important to have a wide range of capabilities to increase the pool of prospective physician candidates, including International Medical Graduates (IMGs).

This webinar will not only provide a basic overview to the immigration-related steps that need to be accomplished to recruit a foreign physician, but this session will provide meaningful pointers on how immigration can and should become a powerful and proactive part of a physician recruitment and retention program.

This webinar is aimed at physician recruiters, practice group managers, and other professionals involved in physician recruitment. The goal of this program is to enhance the ability of healthcare employers to consider, recruit, and retain IMGs, and to make immigration into a competitive edge for your organization.
