Tax Disputes & Litigation Attorney Kyle Brehm Joins Fredrikson

Firm News

12.04.2019

Attorney Kyle M. Brehm has joined Fredrikson & Byron's Tax Disputes & Litigation and Business & Tax Planning Groups. Brehm is a tax attorney with more than a decade of experience working with companies to resolve a broad spectrum of issues related to State and Local Tax matters.

Brehm is a State and Local Tax practitioner, focused on providing value to clients across a variety of industries: healthcare, financial services, manufacturing and retail. He develops the tax departments with which he works, providing training sessions to clients and evaluating existing processes in order to recommend and design process improvements which utilize innovative technology. In addition to advising his clients, Brehm frequently serves as a speaker for professional organizations on topics related to Indirect Tax and relevant technology.

Brehm assists clients by discovering opportunities for cash tax savings related to existing, revised and proposed state and federal legislation and administrative rulings. He leverages these opportunities while completing refund reviews and defending clients against State audit activity. Brehm works diligently to provide clients with increasingly accurate sales tax compliance. He conducts nexus reviews, completes taxability research and automates the results of evaluations through varying software solutions. Brehm helps clients mitigate risk in the Indirect Tax space through the negotiation of Voluntary Disclosure Agreements, as well as conducting due diligence related to merger and acquisition activity.
