Serving clients throughout the Red River Valley, North Dakota and northern Minnesota, lawyers in the Fredrikson & Byron Fargo office focus on a wide range of commercial law matters including corporate and transactional work, banking, bankruptcy, business litigation, civil litigation, construction law and litigation, contracts, employment and labor law, health law, insurance, medical products litigation, mergers and acquisitions, real estate, structured finance, toxic tort law, trade secrets and trusts and estates planning.

Our attorneys have deep roots in the Red River Valley and strong reputations in the Bar. By combining our local expertise and understanding, with the breadth and resources of a Midwest firm with international offices, we are uniquely qualified to tackle any legal issue for our clients.

The clients served by the Fargo office reflect the local and national character of the office. Many have roots firmly in the Red River Valley.

While our clients benefit from the access to the resources of a large, regional law firm, the personal, responsive nature of the services are distinctly local.
